An effective employee onboarding program is key to more productive employees and reduced turnover, yet many companies neglect or ignore this important aspect of organizational responsibility. Here are a few onboarding best practices that can help.

1. Make Onboarding Part of the Recruitment Process
2. Link Design to Culture
3. Design a Process, Not an Event
4. Make It Timely
5. Make It Fresh
6. Design Something Memorable
7. Create a Good First Impression
8. Get Executives, Human Resources, and Hiring Managers Involved
9. Design to Be Inclusive
10. Use a Blended Approach

Create an effective onboarding program that builds engagement with your new hires right away to increase retention and transform your organization.
